My website is based on my growing love for make up and fashion. Ever since i was younger, I have noticed my passion and skill for make up and beauty. My dream is to become a beauty blogger for BuzzFeed, or on YouTube.

The purpose of my website is to appeal to make up and beauty lovers. From teaching my readers tips and tricks for the perfect hair and make up to giving my own reviews on new and my favorite products.

Attached are four hyperlinks related to my website:

1) <http://www.budgetbeautyblog.com/>
<http://www.beauddiction.com/>

These two links are both created by the same blogger, one is an old account the other is her new website. But i think it just gives a perfect example of how i would like my website to look based on giving reviews and sharing product tips for both high end and affordable products.

2) <http://www.makeupandbeautyblog.com/>

This blog is also a perfect example of ideas that i would like to portray on my website. The creator not only gives her reviews on products but also gives images on "HOW TO" with make up creating more of a tutorial with tips and trick hacks.

3) <http://beautychronicles.com/>

This blog has everything. From beauty, skincare, lifestyle hacks, and personal press information. Although my website is make up and beauty related, finding personal life hacks to contribute to your daily beauty regimen is helpful is becoming successful.

4) <http://thebeautydepartment.com/>

This blog is my ideal set up with pictures and clickable links with easy access to different parts of my website. i want my readers to be able to see the product or hack i am talking about and have my readers be able to, if wanted click that link or picture and read the information i would like to give them.

to me, it is very easy to become a beauty blogger but can at times become difficult. I think with time and dedication I can give great insight to my readers and become a successful beauty blogger.
